Course Description:

History course will provide an overview of the Tohono O'odham people, culture, and contemporary issues of the Tohono O'odham Nation. How European contact changed the land, lives, and cultural beliefs of the O'odham. The changes and development of world views, through the social, political and economic ideals of the Europeans.

Course Objectives:

Upon completion of this course, the student will learn and understand the changes and assimilation of the O'odham people, loss of their lands, and their Himdag, from the initial contact of our ancestors with the Europeans through the Tohono O'odham Nation's contemporary issues of today.

Student Learning Outcomes (SLOs) : (Three to Six)

Students compare and contrast the impact and influence of the Christian conversion brought by the Missionaries and their mission system. Not only was the O’odham social aspect of history affected, but also the cultural beliefs and lifeways of migration through out O’odham land. Violent conflicts amongst the indigenous people and the Spanish military in this area was a constant cycle.

Course Structure:

Instruction of O’odham history will be lecture and discussion with power point images of geographic locations of areas referred to in the creation legend and other archaeological and anthropological sites. Dramatizations of Pre-contact era of North America. The Bering Strait theories will also be examined. Pre-history and Paleoindians are another aspect of O’odham beginnings.

Time constraints(summer sessions), and limited transportation resources do not enable the class to have field trips hence the power points and videos.

Organization, learning activities, instructions, expectations, and must have at least one learning activity for each objective, but may have than one.
